

Short bio:

Lorraine Devon Wilke is a storyteller in many avenues of the arts: photography, music, and, of course, her writing. Whether her blog, The Huffington Post, her photography or her original music, her mission is always to find the most compelling narrative. Her debut novel, After The Sucker Punch, and short story, “She Tumbled Down,” were 2014 successes, while 2015 brought the launch of her second novel, Hysterical Love. Her third, a “sociopolitical love story” titled, A Nice White Girl, is positioned for a 2017 release. Her books are available at Amazon (in print & ebook) and Barnes & Noble (print only). Her print books can also be found at various bookstores, and can be ordered for bookstores, libraries, and retail outlets via ipage.ingramcontent.

Please visit her site for links and additional information.

Contact: info@lorrainedevonwilke.com

Information/links: www.lorrainedevonwilke.com